

One TBD strategy is to make use of short-lived feature branches (branches which last a day or two at most, and are not shared) while another is to commit directly to the trunk. What are the implications of these strategies with respect to:

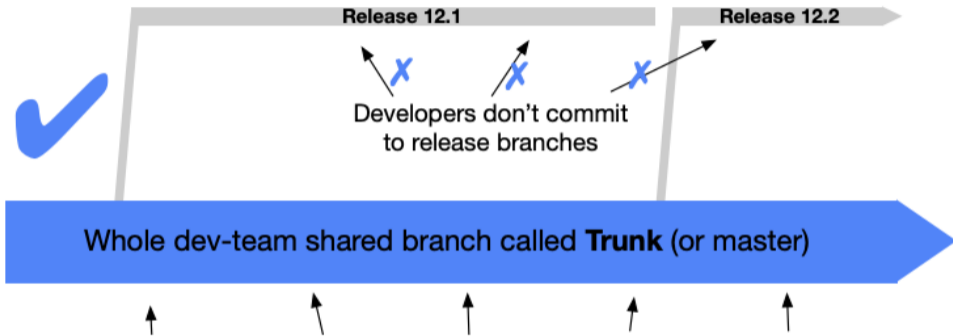

- code review,
- build pipelines,
- trunk stability,
- overall speed of development, and
- the development team.

TBD Strategy 1

Adapted from <https://trunkbaseddevelopment.com/>

TBD Strategy 2

Adapted from <https://trunkbaseddevelopment.com/>